Gerard is highly skilled across both planning and design.

Gerard has had years of experience in the design field overseas. He successfully designed wayfinding systems for several large scale commercial developments in Asia before completing his Master's Degree in Urban Planning at RMIT University in 2017. His design skills and great eye for detail, along with his understanding of planning have allowed him to translate a vision into high quality plans.

Gerard completed his Postgraduate Degree in Urban Planning and Environment at RMIT University and joined Mesh in December 2017. Having qualifications in both planning and design, Gerard is able to undertake a variety of tasks across the two disciplines.
