Jacob has a keen interest in urban design and landscape architecture with strong technical skills.

Winning a local urban design competition at 14 began Jacobs life-long pursuit for quality well considered and clearly communicated design. Now a well-established urban design leader, Jacob has broad experience and qualifications in urban design, landscape architecture and planning in both the public and private sectors, and is considered a meshy all-rounder. This life-long pursuit continues at Mesh in every project Jacob works on, firing his passion for reimagining how we should plan and design our cities and towns.

As a designer Jacob communicates through a range of drawing techniques. Unlike other emerging urban designers of his generation, he has been mentored to appreciate the iterative, agile and beautiful qualities of freehand plan sketches/diagrams. Jacob is actively working on numerous projects across Melbourne growth areas and is astutely aware of industry realities and standards.
