With a sense of calmness amongst the chaos, Ryan undertakes a wide variety of urban design and project management tasks.

Since starting at Mesh in 2014, Ryan completed his double degree in design and urban planning at RMIT University and transitioned into a consultant urban designer role. He has developed technical skills through software applications such as AutoCAD, QGIS, and the Adobe Creative Suite, enabling high quality and accurate design outputs across a variety of project scales.

With a sense of calmness amongst the chaos, Ryan undertakes a wide variety of urban design and project management tasks, demonstrating his ability to work between both analogue and digital medium to effectively identify design solutions.

Ryan's passion for positive built environment outcomes is evident, his attention to detail is clearly apparent when representing the ideas and thoughts of the Mesh team through concise, informative plans and visuals. His skill set has proven valuable to the team and the projects allocated to him.
